Royce Leather Keeping in Touch with Technology Driven Consumers

Royce Leather has recently supplemented its fall collection with a series of leather products that meet the demands of the modern consumer, whether they be related to aesthetics, functionality, or safety.

In response to the skyrocketing demand for the iPad and the thinner, faster Amazon Kindle debuting in late August, Royce Leather has created genuine leather cases for both electronic items. These beautiful leather cases are not only genuine leather, but they are also accented with features that address safety concerns such as four well-fitting elastic bands and an exterior magnetic snap closure on the iPad case (901-6) and two elastic bands as well as two deep leather pockets on the Kindle case. (908-6).

Additionally, the Passport Ticket Holder (#211-5 BLK, TAN, WILDBERRY) will be equipped with Radio Frequency Identification (RFID) blocking technology so that consumers can prevent themselves from falling prey to identity theft, especially as a travel filled holiday season nears. To maintain Royce Leather's philosophy of functionality without sacrificing beauty, it is crafted with top grain Nappa cowhide.
